CORNERSTONE SECURITY WINS MAJOR AIRPORT CONTRACT

Air Methods Corporation selects CornerStone to provide security services for its headquarters facility at Centennial Airport, Centennial, Colorado.

Centennial, CO October 30, 2007 – CornerStone Security, a total solutions provider of security, fire alarm, and video surveillance systems, has been selected by Colorado-based Air Methods Corporation, the largest air ambulance operator in the United States to provide an upgrade and expansion of Air Methods’ security system.

CornerStone, whose proposal was chosen after soliciting proposals from two local and two national companies, was in a unique position as a local company with nearly 30 years of experience on the national level.

CornerStone Security will provide access control equipment and a monthly Web-hosted service, using the Brivo Access Control System (ACS), as well as all system support services. The Brivo ACS provides a cost-effective Web-hosted service that replaces the need for dedicated "head end" PCs and allows all panel programming to be performed over the Internet.

CornerStone Security President Larry Giuliani stated, “We are very happy to have the opportunity to work with Air Methods. We feel strongly that this combination of national experience in a “home town” business will benefit Air Methods, by providing the latest in technology, through affordable, reliable, and user-friendly security services.”

About CornerStone Security

CornerStone Security is a ‘total solutions provider’ offering expert consulting, design, implementation, monitoring and maintenance of security systems, fire alarm systems and video surveillance systems.
